Additional notes

Under the Code of Canon Law, abortion is treated as a 'delict against human life and freedom' under Title VI (1). The Code of Canon Law states: "A person who procures a completed abortion incurs a late sententiae excommunication." (1) Canon 1398 does not specifically mention accomplices.

Canon 1329.2 states: "Accomplices who are not named in a law or precept incur a late sententiae penalty attached to a delict if without their assistance the delict would not have been committed, and the penalty is of such a nature that it can affect them; otherwise, they can be punished by ferendae sententiae penalties." (2)

The Code of Canon Law defines penalties as follows: "Generally, a penalty is ferendae sententiae, so that it does not bind the guilty party until after it has been imposed; if the law or precept expressly establishes it, however, a penalty is late sententiae, so that it is incurred ipso facto when the delict is committed." (3)

The Code of Canon Law makes stipulations regarding persons who "are not subject to a penalty when they have violated a law or precept" which are relevant to abortion (2, Canon 1323). It further sets out cases in which "the perpetrator of a violation is not exempt from a penalty, but the penalty established by law or precept must be tempered or a penance employed in its place if the delict was committed" (2, Canon 1324).

In an Apostolic Letter on 20 November 2016, Pope Francis stated: "I henceforth grant to all priests, in virtue of their ministry, the faculty to absolve those who have committed the sin of procured abortion." The Code of Canon Law states: "A person who procures a completed abortion incurs a late sententiae excommunication." (1) Canon 1398 does not specifically mention accomplices. Canon 1329.2 states: "Accomplices who are not named in a law or precept incur a late sententiae penalty attached to a delict if without their assistance the delict would not have been committed, and the penalty is of such a nature that it can affect them; otherwise, they can be punished by ferendae sententiae penalties." (2) The Code of Canon Law defines penalties as follows: "Generally, a penalty is ferendae sententiae, so that it does not bind the guilty party until after it has been imposed; if the law or precept expressly establishes it, however, a penalty is late sententiae, so that it is incurred ipso facto when the delict is committed." (3) The Code of Canon Law makes stipulations regarding persons who "are not subject to a penalty when they have violated a law or precept" which are relevant to abortion (2, Canon 1323). It further sets out cases in which "the perpetrator of a violation is not exempt from a penalty, but the penalty established by law or precept must be tempered or a penance employed in its place if the delict was committed" (2, Canon 1324). In an Apostolic Letter on 20 November 2016, Pope Francis stated: "I henceforth grant to all priests, in virtue of their ministry, the faculty to absolve those who have committed the sin of procured abortion."
