WHO Guidance

The following descriptions and recommendations were extracted from WHO guidance on safe abortion.

A woman is entitled to know the status of her pregnancy and to act on this information: health protection or social reasons can be interpreted to include distress of the pregnant woman caused by the diagnosis of fetal impairment. Prenatal tests and other medical diagnostic services cannot legally be refused because the woman may decide to terminate her pregnancy. Safe Abortion Guidelines, § 4.2.1.4.

Additional notes

Abortion is permitted when the embryo or fetus has an acquired or genetic congenital pathology, incompatible with independent extraterine life, in any case of a lethal nature.

WHO Guidance

The following descriptions and recommendations were extracted from WHO guidance on safe abortion.

The protection of women from cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment requires that those who have become pregnant as the result of coerced or forced sexual acts can lawfully access safe abortion services. Prompt, safe abortion services should be provided on the basis of a woman’s complaint rather than requiring forensic evidence or police examination. Safe Abortion Guidelines, § 4.2.1.3.

Laws or policies that impose time limits on the length of pregnancy may have negative consequences for women, including forcing them to seek clandestine abortions and suffer social inequities. Safe Abortion Guidelines, § 4.2.1.7.

Additional notes

The rape ground extends to any pregnancy where the woman or girl became pregnant without her consent. The main characteristic in such cases of a sexual act without consent is coercion, and cases may relate to the use of varying degrees of force, psychological intimidation, extortion, threats, deception, or conditions in which a woman cannot transmit or express her will.

In the case of a girl under the age of 14, the gestational limit is fourteen weeks.

The fulfillment of human rights requires that women can access safe abortion when it is indicated to protect their health. WHO defines health for member states as a state of complete physical, mental and social well-being and not merely the absence of disease or infirmity. Safe Abortion Guidelines, § 4.2.1.2.

The human right to life requires protection by law, including when pregnancy is life-threatening or a pregnant woman’s life is otherwise endangered. Both medical and social conditions can constitute life-threatening conditions. Safe Abortion Guidelines, § 4.2.1.1.

Laws or policies that impose time limits on the length of pregnancy may have negative consequences for women, including forcing them to seek clandestine abortions and suffer social inequities. Safe Abortion Guidelines, § 4.2.1.7.

The embryo or fetus has an acquired or genetic congenital pathology, incompatible with independent extrauterine life, in any case of a lethal nature. No gestational limit is specified.

Specialist Doctor, Including OB/GYN

Authorisations are required in cases where the embryo or fetus has an acquired or genetic congenital pathology, incompatible with independent extrauterine life, in any case of a lethal nature. Non-obstetric pathologies that gave rise to the cause should be diagnosed in conjunction with the corresponding specialist (internist, cardiologist, oncologist, etc.) and evaluated together with the obstetrician-gynecologist. In the case of pregnancy arising from rape, a health team is convened, specially constituted for these purposes, which must confirm the concurrence of the facts. This is not necessary in the case of minors under the age of 14 years because rape can be assumed by Third-party authorization should not be required for women to obtain abortion services. Safe Abortion Guidelines, § 4.2.2.

Additional notes

Laws, policies and practices that restrict access to abortion information and services can deter women from care seeking and create a "chilling effect" (suppression of actions because of fear of reprisals or penalties) for the provision of safe, legal services. Examples of barriers include: requiring third-party authorization from one or more medical professionals or a hospital committee, court or police, parent or guardian or a woman’s partner or spouse. Safe Abortion Guidelines, § 4.2.2
A health team especially formed for this purpose will confirm the concurrence of the facts that constitute this ground and the gestational age, informing in writing the woman or her legal representative, and the head of the hospital establishment or private clinic where the interruption is requested.

Can another adult consent in place of a parent?

Yes

Girls under the age of 14 years require the authorisation of one of their legal representatives. Where this authorisation is lacking because of the legal representative’s unwillingness or inability to provide it, the girl, with the support of a member of the health team, may request the intervention of a judge to establish the existence of one of the legal grounds. The court will resolve the request for termination of pregnancy without trial and verbally, no later than forty-eight hours after the submission of the application, with the background provided by the health team, hearing the girl and the legal representative who has denied the authorization and, if considered appropriate, the assisting member of the health team. When in the judgment of the doctor (provided in writing) there is evidence that requesting the authorization of the legal representative could put the girl at a serious risk of physical or psychological abuse, coercion, abandonment, uprooting or other actions or omissions that violate her integrity, a substitute judicial authorization will be requested. No opposition to such a request from third parties other than the legal representative who has denied the authorization is permitted. For adolescents between the ages of 14 and 18 years, the legal representative will be informed of the girl’s wish to terminate pregnancy. If the adolescent has more than one, only the one she indicates will be informed. In certain circumstances this requirement does not obtain.

WHO Guidance
The following descriptions and recommendations were extracted from WHO guidance on safe abortion.

Health-care professionals who claim conscientious objection must refer the woman to another willing and trained provider in the same, or another easily accessible health-care facility. Where referral is not possible, the health-care professional who objects, must provide safe abortion to save the woman's life, to prevent serious injury to her health and provide urgent care when women present with complications from an unsafe or illegal abortion. Safe Abortion Guidelines, § 4.2.2.5.

Additional notes
The following individuals may qualify as conscientious objectors: the surgeon required to interrupt the pregnancy and the rest of the personnel who have a role to play “inside the surgical pavilion during the intervention”. Conscientious objection does not apply to acts of information, diagnosis, taking and reporting of examinations, reassignment, referral, or other acts of preparation or care after the procedure of termination of pregnancy, whether the latter are required regularly in the procedure or required due to complications in the woman's health condition. Anyone who has expressed his or her conscientious objection will maintain their objection in all health care centres where they perform functions, whether these are public or private. If the woman requires immediate and urgent attention in situations in which continuation of pregnancy constitutes a danger to her life or health, the person who has manifested his or her conscientious objection cannot be excused from performing the interruption of pregnancy when there is no other surgeon who can perform the procedure.

Additional notes

In January 2019 the Constitutional Tribunal clarified that private health establishments which have signed agreements governed by the provisions of the decree with force of law No. 36, of 1980, of the Ministry of Health may invoke conscientious objection to the provision of abortion services. If a woman requires immediate and urgent attention in situations in which continuation of pregnancy constitutes a danger to her life or health, the establishment that has manifested the conscientious objection cannot be excused from carrying out abortion.
