WHO Guidance

The following descriptions and recommendations were extracted from WHO guidance on safe abortion.

Health-care professionals who claim conscientious objection must refer the woman to another willing and trained provider in the same, or another easily accessible health-care facility. Where referral is not possible, the health-care professional who objects, must provide safe abortion to save the woman's life, to prevent serious injury to her health and provide urgent care when women present with complications from an unsafe or illegal abortion. Safe Abortion Guidelines, § 4.2.2.5.

Additional notes

The Code of Professional Conduct of Nurses and Midwives indicates that "a nurse or a midwife shall have the right to refuse to participate in activities contrary to his/her personal moral and professional convictions. However, such rights shall not contravene his/her responsibilities towards patients and those who require his/her services."
